Andrea Faustini, Evaporate

Nineteen years old I was fresh off the train
In a city where I had no name
Loads in a bag but no cash in the back
Didn't care though, because I had a dream

Little did I know I'd get trapped in your arms
And the real me, I knew would change
Little did I know that this feeling was love
And I didn't know I made mistakes

Don't tell me it's all in my head
You're trouble how could I forget
I drink myself sober instead
The memory of you hasn't left

Why won't it evaporate
Evaporate
Why won't it Evaporate
Evaporate

Should've learned from the first
But I'm stuck in reverse
And I thought I would try us again
But five years apart, lost myself in the dark
But I hoped in my heart you could change

Too little too late because I'm trapped in your arms
And I realise this is the same
Still I pretend that this feeling is love but I know now it's all a mistake

Don't tell me it's all in my head
You're trouble how could I forget
I drink myself sober instead
The memory of you hasn't left

Why won't it evaporate
Evaporate
Why won't it Evaporate
Evaporate

I should've stayed, away from you
I should've stayed, away, from you

Don't tell me it's all in my head
You're trouble how could I forget
I drink myself sober instead
The memory of you hasn't left

Don't tell me it's all in my head
You're trouble how could I forget
I drink myself sober instead
The memory of you hasn't left

Why won't it evaporate
Evaporate
Why won't evaporate
Evaporate