Smallpools, Mason Jar

[Verse 1]
She saw the world through a mason jar, it's foggy
She had the kids with the vicious smiles, they got me
Up on a hill with the trophy wives
She's doing all right, all, all, right (yeah)
They let her roam some tree or vine, no question
She's got a home with some shit to climb, don't mention
Been up and down like a hundred times

[Chorus]
But I got to kill this conversation while
There is still sense in my mind
But I miss the way you feel
No one will ever know

[Verse 2]
She wrote a film 'bout a double life, she's livin'
She had a weak co-star in mind, I give in
Mix up the clear with the coffee grinds
We're shootin' all night, all, all, night (yeah)
I feel the shift of the fallen tide, I'm leavin'
Nobody dares to take her side, still pleadin'
She's breakin' down tell me one more time

[Chorus]
But I meant to kill this conversation
While there was still sense in my mind
But I miss the way you feel
No one will ever know

[Bridge]
Well we both know
The green will fade to gold
But it wasn't right, I should've called them off
A face like stone
The pain begins to show
And it was not right, I should've called them off

[Outro]
But I miss the way you feel (well we both know)
No one will ever know (the green will fade to gold)
I miss the way you feel
It wasn't right I should've called them off (no one will ever know)
But I miss the way you feel (a face like stone)
No one will ever know (the pain begins to show)
I miss the way you feel
It was not right I should've called them off (no one will ever know
