Lana Del Rey, Coachella - Woodstock In My Mind

I was at Coachella
Leaning on your shoulder
Watching your husband swing in time
I guess I was in it
Cause baby for a minute
It was Woodstock in my mind

In the next morning
They put out the warning
Tensions were rising over country lines
I turned off the music
Tried to sit and use it
All of the love I saw that night

Cause what about all these children
And what about all their parents
And what about all their crowns they wear
In hair so long like mine
And what about all their whishes
Wrapped up like garland roses
Round their little heads
I said a prayer for a third time

I'd trade at all for a stairway to heaven
I'd take my time for the climb up to the top of it
I'd trade the fame and the fortune and the legend
I'd give it all away if you give me
Just one day to ask him one question
I'd give it all away if you give me jus
Just one day to ask him one question
I'd give it all away if you give me jus

I was at Coachella
Leaning on your shoulder
Watching your husband swing and shine
I'd say he was hella cool to win them over
Critics can be so mean sometimes
He was on his knees and I thought he was breaking them down with his words
And his words divine
Doesn't take a genius to know what what you've got going
To not want music cause they lost their minds

Cause what about all these children
And all their children's children
And why am I even wondering that today
Maybe my contribution could be as small as hooping
That words could turn to birds
And birds would send my thoughts your way

I'd trade at all for a stairway to heaven
I'd take my time for the climb up to the top of it
I'd trade the fame and the fortune and the legend
I'd give it all away if you give me
Just one day to ask him one question
I'd give it all away if you give me just
Just one day to ask him one question
I'd give it all away if you give me just

A stairway, stairway to heaven
A stairway
Got a million things I wanna say
…. It will me okey?
Million thinks I wanna say
…. last time

A stairway, stairway to heaven
A stairway
