Staring Back, One More Year

Stumbling across your path takes me to the place I was last year
And its been so long since Ive seen you in this light untainted
Memories that I have jaded ease the pain
Do you know just how I feel?
It makes it real and now the truth is unveiled
Trying to decide makes me want to run and hide
As the lies are washed away this scar aches
As right and wrong blend into one
The ending verse still remains unsung
So afraid of my faith but its time to move
Intercept your gaze clouded with this haze
That you can put around yourself
And now Im seeing as youre seeing too, as youre seeing too
Cannot wait forever for you to come around
Existence still unsound so I will Step aside and let you through
The title doesnt fit you
This cycle signifies my doom
But what else can I do?