

Lauren Jauregui, Colors

Can't be without you
Don't wanna be with you
And although I have tried to
My heart has a way of rejecting
What's good for it...

I'm sorry
I know it's tiring
All the convincing
I can be someone I feel I'm not.
Who taught me that?
That I wasn't good enough?
Why did I let you believe it?
Why haven't I caught your bluff?
When everyone's gone, you can't fall apart.
You will see it's always been

You and I
You and I
Stay
Like the colors on the walls
Paint
But you can't erase them all

I am starting to see it now
It's so clear to me now
Found out

I am actually not addicted to the drugs
I am addicted to feeling fucking numb
This world I am living in
There's just too much to be done
To dismantle the mental
That has us moving
Like we weren't made with love
Creators watching and I know that so much
Sat me down and told me to:
Stop watching, stop doing
If you don't listen the messages they'll just keep coming
Ignoring spirit really never helped amount to nothing so
Grow!
