

Lor, windmill have you seen that man? broken pieces of his plan taken by the wind to the place where you have been corner of the room I think I say your brother moon he came out of the grey he was sad, but that's ok windmill

are you still afraid of nothing is the wind still your friend?
are you still afraid of something is it you who command?
are you still afraid of wind oh, windmill you're place where I can cry
if I want, when I'm sad you're a place where I can lie when I am tired, when I am down you're the place where I can die up below so far nothing happens in the dark are you still afraid there is nothing you should say I saw your brother moon I hope that you will see him soon he'll take you with the wind to the place where you have been

windmill
are you still afraid of nothing
is the wind still your friend?
are you still afraid of something
is it you who command?
are you still afraid of wind
oh, windmill
you're place where I can cry
if I want, when I'm sad
you're a place where I can lie
when I am tired, when I am down
you're the place where I can die

windmill
are you still afraid of nothing
is the wind still your friend?
are you still afraid of something
is it you who command?
are you still afraid of wind
oh, windmill
you're place where I can cry
if I want, when I'm sad
you're a place where I can lie
when I am tired, when I am down
you're the place where I can die

running around the hall holding breath and holding soul blinded by the moon waiting for another noon hiding pride so fast like it happened in the past wind is blowing still on the hill you have been