

Parcels, Withorwithout

You were the world calling out my own name
You were the girl I fell beneath every day
You were the birds talking in my dream you were the world I wish I'd never seen You were the line, drawn in every way you were divine even though I'd say you were the start of something I don't need you are the world I wish I'd never seen

with or without you
better without you
better without you
better without you
with or without you

said I was more than a man in your way said I was yours til the end of the day there was a time when I would have been over the moon, sinking on my knees you are the world calling out my own mane
you were the birds talking in my dream

better without you
better without you
with or without you
